INTEGRATED PROGRAMME IN MANAGEMENT (IPM)

TERM: V

TITLE OF THE COURSE: Sociology II

CREDITS: 3

COURSE DESCRIPTION

One of the aims of higher education is to produce leaders who will be instrumental in creating a healthy society free from age old social malice. This necessitates as a precondition, a proper understanding of the pathological conditions existing in the social milieu. This course will offer the students an opportunity to learn the magnitude, causes and consequences of three prominent social problems such as Poverty, Illiteracy and Unemployment. The in-depth analysis of these three problems along with the critical evaluation of measures undertaken by government and non-government agencies to eradicate these, will enable them to think of possible strategies to combat these in an innovative and more successful way.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. This Course aims at helping the students understand the magnitude, causes and consequences of some major social problems affecting the health of Indian Society.
2. It will make them aware of the flaws of the preventive and curative measures already undertaken to combat these problems which ultimately will stimulate them to think and devise better and innovative methods to eradicate these problems.
3. In a selfish domain understanding the magnitude and intensity of these problems will provide them a better idea of the population of the universe where they are going to start their profession ultimately helping them to formulate appropriate plans and suitable strategies.
4. In a selfless domain it will make them aware about their corporate social responsibilities.
